Spotlight on our client: Mundo Churrasco Restaurant

In Brazil, Churrasco (pronounced, Shoo-Has-Co) is the term for a barbeque, a 300 year old culinary tradition that originated in the south of Brazil.

In Australia we call it the Aussie BBQ! The difference here is that the entire meat has been seasoned to only enhance the flavour of the meat locking in the flavours whilst roasting above and open pit of clean charcoal. Did your mouth just water? HmMMM

This culinary delight has to be experienced to be believed, truly the best cuts of Beef, Pork, Lamb, Chicken, Fish are BBQ-ed along with vegetables and other delicacies hand made and home baked are brought to your table, dishes that truly make your mouth water. And it keeps coming, that's right! It keeps coming until you are completely satisfied you have had enough.

In the old days, "Gauchos" Southern Brazilian Cowboys pierced large pieces of meat on skewers and slowly roasted them over pits of open flames. Gauchos would prepare a feast for their families while talking about their adventures on the plains.

The roasted meats were brought around to each family, offering the best of the gaucho's herd.

Mundo Churrasco open flame Restaurant & Bar continues this tradition and now welcomes you and your family to our tables where our carving waiters will roam the restaurant with all the freshly roasted meats and speciality dishes until you say...NO MORE...please!

Fair Work Information Statement

From 1 January 2010, all employers in the Federal system are required to provide new employees with a Fair Work Information Statement, as soon as possible after the employee starts work.

This is a requirement under the National Employment Standards. It can be given to a new employee by-

- Giving it to them personally;
- Post;
- Email;
- Fax; or
- Any other acceptable means (such as courier etc)

It is recommended that the employer keeps a record of how and when the Fair Work Information Statement was given to the employee.
